Upside/downside capture ratio

Portfolio manager's tenure, April 2011 to September 2023*

*Daniel Dupont took over full portfolio management responsibilities for Fidelity Canadian Large Cap Fund on March 25, 2011.

Source: Fidelity Investments Canada ULC. The upside/downside capture ratio measures performance in up/down markets relative to the Fund's benchmark (as defined by a blended index comprising 70% S&P/TSX 60 Capped Index and 30% S&P 500 Index). Upside/downside capture ratios were calculated using full calendar months starting with April 2011. They are calculated by compounding and annualizing the monthly returns for the Fund and the Index in periods when the Index was up/down. The annualized return of the Fund is divided by the annualized return of the Index to produce the capture ratio for corresponding up/down market performance periods. A total of 150 monthly returns were analyzed; of those, 98 were up markets, while 52 were down markets. Performance is based on Series F returns, net of fees, in Canadian dollars. Series F is available only to investors who are eligible to buy this series. Investors who buy Series F pay investment management fees and expenses to Fidelity. Investors will also pay their dealer a fee for financial advice services in addition to the Series F fees charged by Fidelity.

Commissions, trailing commissions, management fees, brokerage fees and expenses may be associated with investments in mutual funds and ETFs. Please read the mutual fund's or ETF's prospectus, which contains detailed investment information, before investing. The indicated rates of return are historical annual compounded total returns for the period indicated including changes in unit value and reinvestment of distributions. The indicated rates of return do not take into account sales, redemption, distribution or option charges or income taxes payable by any unitholder that would have reduced returns. Mutual funds and ETFs are not guaranteed. Their values change frequently. Past performance may not be repeated.

If you buy other series of Fidelity Funds, the performance will vary, largely due to different fees and expenses. Investors who buy Series F pay investment management fees and expenses to Fidelity. Investors will also pay their dealer a fee for financial advice services in addition to the Series F fees charged by Fidelity.

Fidelity Global Value Long/Short Fund is an alternative mutual fund. It has the ability to invest in asset classes or use investment strategies that are not permitted for conventional mutual funds. The specific strategies that differentiate this Fund from conventional mutual funds may include increased use of derivatives for hedging and non-hedging purposes, increased ability to sell securities short and the ability to borrow cash to use for investment purposes. If undertaken, these strategies will be used in accordance with the Fund's objectives and strategies and, during certain market conditions, may accelerate the pace at which the Fund decreases in value.

Certain statements in this commentary may contain forward-looking statements ("FLS") that are predictive in nature and may include words such as "expects," "anticipates," "intends," "plans," "believes," "estimates" and similar forward-looking expressions or negative versions thereof. FLS are based on current expectations and projections about future general economic, political and relevant market factors, such as interest, and assuming no changes to applicable tax or other laws or government regulation. Expectations and projections about future events are inherently subject to, among other things, risks and uncertainties, some of which may be unforeseeable and, accordingly, may prove to be incorrect at a future date. FLS are not guarantees of future performance, and actual events could differ materially from those expressed or implied in any FLS. A number of important factors can contribute to these digressions, including, but not limited to, general economic, political and market factors in North America and internationally, interest and foreign exchange rates, global equity and capital markets, business competition and catastrophic events. You should avoid placing any undue reliance on FLS. Further, there is no specific intention of updating any FLS, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise.

From time to time a manager, analyst or other Fidelity employee may express views regarding a particular company, security, industry, market sector or general economic conditions.
